Becky, do you think there actually might be a way to keep both forums? The one here and HB? At least everyone can still be on, especially for those who can't go on HB. Is this possible?

good to know about the fact that newsfeed being seperate is possible...

but what I meant was for it to be a completely seperate webpage, not having any direct connections to Home Base. kinda like how the SA game avatars are used in the SAMB, but encompassing everything.
like, what i'm interpreting your explanation as is you go to the Home Base site, and you load it up, and you either pick Newsfeed alone or Home Base overall.

what I'm thinking of is you go straight to Newsfeed, completely bypassing the Home Base webpage. cuz i'm seeing what you're describing as Newsfeed still in that little box, not this full-page coverage format.

Hi Becky,

For clarification on the new HBMB...

It will still be part of Home Base, correct?

I would like to know, how would this exactly help the situation of those not being able to access Home Base at all? From what I'm inferring, it sounds like HBMB (the Newsfeed) will only need for Home Base to be partially loaded, but I can't see how that would aid those whom can't load it at all.

Sorry for pestering you!

Sorry, I was having trouble accessing the WoF forums at the end of last week and I was really worried you all might be too - but it was just me in the end :P (#adminperks?)

Lemme go through some more of these questions-

@Fairydragon Yes, this is happening to all the forums.

@Scientist I will 100% be on the new forum! I am EVERYWHEREEEE. We are adding some initial tags like "Wings of Fire" and "39 Clues" (as well as a general one). I brought up the idea of adding limited time tags for special events (like a "Charactober" tag during october!), and more custom ones so that you can tag your own works, such as with a "GGaD" tag, and make it easier to find. At first it will just be the basic ones but we really should be able to do fancier stuff.

@Fallon I'm afraid not. We really looked at ways we could port the current forums over to the updated site, and they're built on such an old infrastructure we'd need to build entirely new ones. You can think of it like trying to put a skyscraper on an old, wooden foundation of a building, if that makes sense.

Having new forums built for the updated site is something we looked at doing, we looked at all our options, but when we weighed having them in Home Base versus what we'd end up with on the new site - it first of all wasn't 100% sure if updated forums would even be possible at all, and even if they were possible it was clear that forums within the game environment was the better option. I know it has accessibility issues right now that wouldn't happen if we just had them on the site so it doesn't seem like a better choice, but we're working on that and in the long run I really believe it'll be better than anything we could do on the site.

@Wolfine Yep, we'll add more characters to the islands as well as more islands. Especially as new books in a series come out, we've got to keep the islands updated!

@Night @Galaxian Yes, any standalone Newsfeed would still be part of Home Base. It needs to be connected to run correctly. This will help people with older hardware, slower internet, and as you won't actually need to enter the game world - hopefully it will help those who have strict game-related limitations at home. It won't help those who only use mobile web, so we're looking at other options to help with that. A lot of the loading/crashing issues (like the gray screen issue) are ones we're going to fix regardless, so if that's what's causing people to be unable to access Home Base that should be fixed as we're able to roll out bug fixing updates.

Sorry again, but since I think I've pinpointed why I can never access HB or Newsfeed, even in the future--

Will Home Base/Newsfeed always be oriented by Unity, or will it be oriented by something else as well? My tablet (a Surface Pro, I think) can't access Unity at all, because the apps needed to run it can't be installed at all.

NO!

We can NOT give up the forums! We need to have some kind of thing that can let us roleplay and chat and hang out and be random! The forums are our HOME! @Becky, please put a roleplay on home base if we HAVE to let our home go!

Honestly, I'm very mad rn. This is where I made so many characters as Darkfire, aka firemagic. Please add some siggy function or roleplaying possibility. This is a place where we can be ourselves and meet people that share common interests. I will miss all these amazing people. Especially Darkness, who made the first roleplay I ever participated in. Please please please PLEASE add the roleplaying possibility I talked about.
